On September 21, 2021, both parties agreed to settle their dispute by making payment to Musical.ly. Snapchat acknowledged that it had copied some of Musical.ly's features but did not admit to copyright infringement. They also agreed that the disputed patent was invalid, and Snapchat was directed to pay a cash payment of $15 million and an additional $3 million for a royalty payment which will be based on future Musical.ly earnings from the infringing features for three years."

In May 2021, a video made by Pakistani comedians surfaced on YouTube. The video was critically acclaimed in Pakistan as it made fun of men who perform stunts with several props in public places. Many young people started doing the same thing, which was considered a crime by police officers. In the same month, another video made by two Indian boys went viral on the internet that showed how they were prank calling people and asking vulgar questions."

Another tweet by a Twitter user referenced a news article which noted that "the pressure has risen on the popular video app TikTok. The app has been criticized due to [a] lack of clarity in its privacy policy." This particular article was published by a German news outlet and reports that "The Facebook subsidiary was recently investigated by the Hamburg Commissioner of Data Protection and Freedom of Information for possible violations of data protection laws. The company is now busy working on an improved privacy policy.""

In an article published by TechCrunch, it was alleged that "Yet TikTok's parent company Bytedance, a $75 billion media company that also owns content production companies Jinri Toutiao and TopBuzz (as well as artificial intelligence startups), recently raised $3 billion in new funding from SoftBank. That brings its value to $75 billion." This article was published on TechCrunch. In an article published by The Verge, it was alleged that "Bytedance is best known for the news app Toutiao, which has been called 'the BuzzFeed of China.' It's also made a number of investments in artificial intelligence companies based out of China and recently acquired U.S.-based Flipagram to build out its video art-creation app, which now has 200 million registered users on Google Play — and another 500 million or so on Apple's App Store. In the year since Microsoft bought LinkedIn for $26 billion, Bytedance has already seen its valuation soar past that mark." This article was published on The Verge.",

The app has received mixed reviews, having been criticized for a lack of clarity about what is inappropriate content on its platform and concerns being raised over issues including privacy options and safety. Its unique features such as the live video feature have been praised by users and media sources alike. Furthermore, while some have criticized the fact that it is not integrated with other social media networks, others of Mozillians applauded its different use case of short videos as an alternative to Snapchat or Instagram's stories feature.",

The only remaining question is whether TikTok can continue to grow into a brand that people trust like WeChat in China. Many users of the app have openly voiced their concerns about this, worrying that the app may develop a reputation for being more like Facebook than Instagram (which is more closely related to Twitter). If this turns out to be true, then TikTok may see a dip in share price.",
