In July 2021, TikTok came under heavy criticism for adding a filter to their video function that made black people look like dolls. The company did not take the filter down until pressure from Twitter users. The Twitter account of TikTok was also hacked in September 2021 after many people tweeted with "#FreeTikTok". After the account was returned to normal, all the hashtag tweets were deleted.

TikTok was launched during a time when short-video sharing platform were becoming increasingly popular among users. In 2021, Tinder introduced a new option that allowed users to share videos through its app. This feature was made available to all users including those who are not paid members of Tinder Plus or Tinder Gold. Other social media platforms such as Instagram also followed suit in introducing video features to their content sharing platform.

In an article published by The Washington Post, it was alleged that "It's so popular among young people even that the Chinese government is now trying to ban it." It continued by saying that "The app, which started as a music-sharing app, has rapidly grown into one of the world's largest social networks for young people. It has a wide user base in China and Asia but has also gained popularity in Europe and the United States. But some people in those regions are concerned about whatever is happening on TikTok. They say it is addictive, and they worry it can be used by adults to groom children or teenagers." This article was published on The Washington Post.",
