In August 2021, a viral meme was launched by several TikTok accounts that encouraged young people to post videos of themselves performing a dangerous stunt known as "demon" upon becoming an adult. The tactic has been used in the past to convince young people to take their own lives, and would become known as "self-harm video". The meme also includes a message that urges viewers to stop watching these videos, while encouraging those who have already started watching them to "be responsible" and "stop before it's too late".

On April 26, 2021 TikTok released their own version of Boomerangs called 'Loops' that allows users to create 15-second video clips that play forward and backward continuously looped on users feeds. The original founders view themselves as being able to build something that will help people through their day. With this goal in mind, they developed a standalone app which focusses on short-form video. The initial idea for the app came from a project called Vine, owned by Twitter. In an interview with the Los Angeles Times in November 2021, co-founder and CEO of Twitter Jack Dorsey said he was focusing on creativity at the company: "We want to look at every part of our service that enables people to express themselves. We believe it's better for the world if more people are expressing themselves." Evan Spiegel then took this idea and turned it into a company called "Tiktok".

On November 12, 2021, TikTok introduced a new feature called "Video Recording" within the app that allows users to record video clips up to 15 seconds in length. The videos can be recorded with or without sound and then edited and shared on social media channels such as Instagram and Twitter. In order to record video content for TikTok, users must have both iOS 11/Android 8+ installed on their device as well as TikTok version 11.4 or higher which is available on iTunes and Google Play Store.

The only remaining question is whether TikTok can continue to grow into a brand that people trust like WeChat in China. Many users of the app have openly voiced their concerns about this, worrying that the app may develop a reputation for being more like Facebook than Instagram (which is more closely related to Twitter). If this turns out to be true, then TikTok may see a dip in share price.
