In August 2016, TikTok launched TikTok Live which allows users to livestream themselves singing live while having access to up to ten other users who can follow them and comment on their performance. The feature uses the company's 'TikTok for Artists' app, which the company launched in October 2016, along with a similar app for artists called TikTok Studio that they launched in June 2015.",

A study published in June 2018 by researchers at University College London (UCL) revealed that TikTok's videos were found to be "gender stereotyped, objectifying, and often [showed] normalization of smoking and alcohol use" and also used hashtags in their videos related to body weight control, eating disorder recovery, sexual violence, sexuality issues and gender identity issues. The study goes on to say that children and adolescents are a primary user demographic for this app, and that the app uses "emotional manipulation" to "sustain engagement".",

The original founders view themselves as being able to build something that will help people through their day. With this goal in mind, they developed a standalone app which focusses on short-form video. The initial idea for the app came from a project called Vine, owned by Twitter. In an interview with the Los Angeles Times in November 2013, co-founder and CEO of Twitter Jack Dorsey said he was focusing on creativity at the company: "We want to look at every part of our service that enables people to express themselves. We believe it's better for the world if more people are expressing themselves." Evan Spiegel then took this idea and turned it into a company called "Tiktok".",

In June 2018, TikTok launched an AI-enabled feature to understand the actions of individual users and determine what to share in real time, reducing the amount of social spam on their platform. This is similar to the implementation on Chatroulette and Yik Yak leading up to 2018. The AI system is a collaborative approach between the company and Technicolor AI Lab. The system can use facial recognition technology and timestamps to determine what a user has done recently so that based on that it can then share more relevant videos with other users within the page who also have not done anything recent enough for the AI to detect them. According to the company, this new AI system is capable of reducing the number of social spam videos being shared by 70%.",

On April 26, 2018 TikTok released their own version of Boomerangs called 'Loops' that allows users to create 15-second video clips that play forward and backward continuously looped on users feeds. However, after a few months of the Loops introduction, it was replaced by 'Motion Stills' that work similarly to the Loops feature.",
